

DocWiki:Content_Arbitration

The first line of defense on any wiki is the contributing community. If you see content that is unclear, incorrect, misleading, or does not meet the style, security, or intellectual property guidelines for DocWiki, please correct it.

When content is created or changed on DocWiki, the Cisco Technical Documentation group responsible for that technology will be notified. A representative will review the content to ensure that the article meets style, security, and intellectual property guidelines. Changes may be made to the article based on this review.

If content cannot be assigned to a Cisco Technical Documentation group or the issue is disputed, the Cisco DocWiki Governance Board will resolve the issue.
