

DocWiki:Vulnerabilities

Cisco takes its responsibility to its customers regarding product security very seriously. Accordingly, DocWiki must not be used as a vehicle for reporting security vulnerabilities in Cisco products, or for that matter in any vendor's products.

Cisco has well-established procedures for handling reports of security-related product issues. These are described in Cisco's Security Vulnerability Policy. This policy must be followed when there is any suspicion that a contribution to DocWiki being anticipated may reveal a security vulnerability.

Violation of this policy may result in sanctions including revocation of DocWiki editing privileges.
