

FACT_import_repository

To replace the existing repository with the one that is currently in the file, use the import repository command.

import repository from {file}

Syntax Description

from	Identifies the source set.
file	Imports the current repository into the specified file.

Command Default

No default behavior or values.

Usage Guidelines

When you import a new repository with this command, you overwrite the existing repository and lose all data from the previous repository.

Examples

The following example shows replacing the existing repository with the repository previously exported in the file named "myrepo":

```
fact> import repository from myrepo
Overwrite existing repository [Y/n]? yes
```

Related Commands

export repository export scan import scan