Problem Summary	Subdialog return - caller input error
Error Message	NA
Possible Cause	NA
Recommended Action	The CVP Subdialog Return element requires a yes or no value for its Call Input parameter. In the screen shot below, the user first left the Caller Input value blank. When the user tried to "validate" the application the user received error shown in "Call Studio Problems." The screen shot shows the user then typed in y to fulfill the requirement. When the user tries to validate the application again, the error will no longer be displayed.  The screenshot displays a workflow diagram with the following steps: 'Start Of Call' (green circle) connects via 'next' to 'CVP Subdialog Start_01' (green square), which connects via 'done' to 'Audio_01' (blue square), which connects via 'done' to 'CVP Subdialog Return_01' (red square). The 'CVP Subdialog Return_01' element is currently selected and highlighted with a red border.
